

Rhode Island

Overview of Legal Issues
For Gay Men, Lesbians, Bisexuals
And Transgender People

January 2015

This document is intended to provide general information only and cannot provide guidance or legal advice as to one's specific situation. Moreover, the law is constantly changing and this publication is based upon the information that is known to us as of this printing. For guidance on your particular situation, you must consult a lawyer. You should not act independently on this information. The provision of this information is not meant to create an attorney-client relationship. Check our website, www.glad.org, for more information.

If you have questions about this publication, other legal issues or need lawyer referrals, contact GLAD Answers by live chat or email at www.GLADAnswers.org or by phone weekdays between 1:30 and 4:30 pm at (800) 455-GLAD (4523).

Contents

■ ANTI-DISCRIMINATION LAW	1
Sexual Orientation Discrimination	1
Transgender / Gender Identity Discrimination	2
Employment	2
Public Accommodations	6
Housing	7
Credit	7
Pursuing a Complaint	8
■ FAMILY LAW	16
Marriage and Civil Unions	16
Domestic Partnership	21
Legal Protections for Same-Sex Couples	25
Adoption	28
Custody and Visitation	33
Domestic Violence	37
■ HATE CRIMES / SEX LAWS / POLICE	40
Hate Crimes & Violence	40
Criminal Sex Laws	43
Police Harassment	46
■ STUDENTS' RIGHTS	48
Harassment and Discrimination at School	48
Other Rights of Public School Students	52
Gay / Straight Alliances	54
Resources	54

Anti-Discrimination Law

● Sexual Orientation Discrimination

Does Rhode Island have an anti-discrimination law protecting gay, lesbian, and bisexual individuals from discrimination?

Yes. Rhode Island has enacted a comprehensive anti-discrimination law concerning sexual orientation in employment, housing, credit and public accommodations.¹

Does it also protect people perceived to be gay, lesbian, and bisexual?

Yes. The anti-discrimination law defines “sexual orientation” as “having or being perceived as having an orientation for heterosexuality, bisexuality or homosexuality.”² Thus, if a person is fired because they are perceived to be gay (whether they are or not), they may still invoke the protection of the anti-discrimination law to challenge the firing.

Does it also protect people associated with gay, lesbian, and bisexual individuals?

Not specifically. But in some situations, if a person is fired from a job or evicted from his or her home because he or she hangs out with someone who is gay or lesbian, it may be possible to show that the person was fired or evicted because the employer or landlord thought he or she was gay or lesbian as well.

¹ R.I. Pub. L. 1995, ch. 32.

² R.I. Gen. Laws, §§ 28-5-6 (employment); 34-37-3 (housing); 11-24-2.1 (public accommodations).

● Transgender/Gender Identity Discrimination

Do protections exist for transgender people under state anti-discrimination law?

Yes. In May, 2001, Rhode Island became the second state in the country to explicitly prohibit discrimination on the basis of gender identity or expression, thereby protecting transgender people from discrimination in employment, housing, credit, and public accommodations.³ The law defines gender identity or expression as including a person's "actual or perceived gender, as well as a person's gender identity, gender-related self-image, gender-related appearance, or gender-related expression, whether or not that gender identity is different from that traditionally associated with the person's sex at birth."⁴

● Employment

What does the law forbid? To whom does the law apply?

The anti-discrimination law applies to employers (government-based or private) who have at least 4 employees (not including the owner, certain family members, or domestic servants).⁵

It forbids employers from refusing to hire a person, or discharging them, or discriminating against them in compensation, in terms, conditions or privileges of employment or in any other matter directly or indirectly related to employment because of sexual orientation or gender identity or expression.⁶ Beyond hiring and firing, this covers most significant job actions, such as failure to promote, demotion, excessive discipline, harassment and different treatment of the employee and similarly situated co-workers. It also prohibits an employer from ³ R.I. Pub. L. 2001, ch. 340.

⁴ R.I. Gen. Laws, §§ 28-5-6 (employment); 34-37-3 (housing); 11-24-2.1 (public accommodations).

⁵ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 28-5-6 (6), (7).

⁶ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 28-5-7 (1).

inquiring about a person's sexual orientation either during a job interview or after hiring.

The law also applies to employment agencies and labor organizations (e.g. unions),⁷ as well as state employment-related activities, programs and services.⁸

As broad as the law is, there are several exemptions.

- Employers with fewer than 4 employees are exempt.⁹
- While there are no general occupational exemptions from the reach of the anti-discrimination law, an employer, agency or labor organization may defend against a discrimination claim by arguing that a “bona fide occupational qualification” of the particular position is that it has someone in it who is non-gay or non-transgender.¹⁰ While that defense is allowed in the law, it is strictly applied and very rarely successful.
- The employment discrimination statute does not apply “to a religious corporation, association, educational institution, or society with respect to the employment of individuals of its religion to perform work connected with the carrying on of its activities.”¹¹ This exemption, however, is not a carte blanche for an employer to use his or her religious beliefs as a justification for discrimination.

It is important to note that unlawful employment practices in Rhode Island also include practices which have a “disparate impact” based on sexual orientation or gender identity (or other characteristics) when the respondent is unable to show that the practice or group of practices in question is required by “business necessity.”¹² This can be important to ⁷ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 28-5-7 (2), (3).

⁸ R.I. Gen. Laws, ch. 28-5.1.

⁹ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 28-5-6(7)(i).

¹⁰ R.I. Gen. Laws § 28-5-7 (4) .

¹¹ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 28-5-6(7)(ii).

¹² R.I. Gen. Laws, § 28-5-7.2.

combat discrimination based on policies or practices that are not LGBT-specific but harm gay or transgender people more than others.

Does the Rhode Island law prohibit sexual harassment?

Yes, by case law, sexual harassment is forbidden as sex discrimination.¹³

In addition, employers with at least 50 employees and employment agencies must develop and disseminate to their workers anti-sexual harassment policies in their workplaces.¹⁴ The law also strongly encourages employers to train employees on the scope of the policy.¹⁵

For purposes of the latter law, Rhode Island law defines “sexual harassment” as:

any unwelcome sexual advances or requests for sexual favors or any other verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature when:

- Submission to such conduct or advances or requests is made either explicitly or implicitly a term or condition of an individual’s employment; or
- Submission to such conduct or advances or requests by an individual is used as the basis for employment decisions affecting such individual; or
- Such conduct or advances or requests have the purpose or effect of unreasonably interfering with an individual’s work performance or creating an intimidating, hostile, or offensive working environment.¹⁶

¹³ See, e.g., Iacampo v. Hasbro, Inc., 929 F. Supp. 562 (D.R.I. 1996).

¹⁴ R.I. Gen. Laws, §§ 28-51-1; 28-51-2 (a), (b).

¹⁵ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 28-51-2 (c).

¹⁶ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 28-51-1.

Can a gay or transgender person be sexually harassed?

It is as unlawful to sexually harass a gay, lesbian, bisexual or transgender person as it is to harass one who is not. Some harassment is specifically anti-gay, and may be more fairly characterized as harassment on the basis of sexual orientation. Similarly, some harassment may be specifically anti-trans and may be pursued more appropriately as discrimination based on gender identity or expression. Other harassment is sexual in nature and more appropriately categorized as “sexual harassment.” Each type of harassment can happen to the same person, and all are forbidden.¹⁷

Moreover, that the sex of the harasser and the victim is the same does not defeat a claim of sexual harassment. Same-sex sexual harassment has been held to violate both state and federal anti-discrimination laws.¹⁸

Can I use the state anti-discrimination law to force my employer to provide benefits to my same-sex partner?

Although the anti-discrimination law says that an employer cannot discriminate on the basis of sexual orientation in terms of compensation, and even though employee benefits are a form of compensation, in many, if not most circumstances, that law probably cannot be used to compel an employer to provide benefits to an employee’s same-sex partner.

Under R.I. Gen. Laws, § 28-5-7 (1)(ii), even if an employer provides benefits to some employees, “nothing herein shall require those benefits to be offered to unmarried partners of named employees.” As a result, the anti-discrimination cannot be used to compel an employer to provide domestic partner benefits. Note that nothing in the law forbids an employer from providing domestic partner benefits if it chooses to do so.

¹⁷ See R.I. Gen. Laws § 28-5-7 (recognizing need for response to complaints of harassment on the basis of sexual orientation and gender identity or expression in addition to that based on sex).

¹⁸ See Mann v. Lima, 290 F. Supp. 2d 190, 194 (D.R.I. 2003); see also R.I. Gen. Laws, § 28-44-17 (sexual harassment against members of either sex may constitute “good cause” for quitting job under unemployment laws).

As discussed below, the state and several municipalities have already equalized some benefits like health insurance.

When an employee has a legal spouse, however, under some circumstances the anti-discrimination law may be a means to ensure equal treatment of same-sex spouses as different-sex spouses. The availability of such a claim depends on the type of benefit sought (i.e., family or medical leave versus health insurance) and on the type and terms of the particular benefits plan. This area of law is complicated and you should feel free to contact GLAD for information specific to your situation.

● Public Accommodations

What is a “place of public accommodation”?

Places of public accommodation are places that are open to the public and include, but are not limited to, stores, restaurants, bars, public transportation, garages, hotels, hospitals, clinics, rest rooms, barber shops, salons, amusement parks, gyms, golf courses, swimming pools, theaters, fairs, libraries, public housing projects, and so on.¹⁹

What does the law say about discrimination in places of public accommodation?

Such places may not refuse, withhold from or deny any person any of the accommodations, advantages, facilities or privileges of that public place, nor may they advertise or state that their accommodations are so limited, because of a person’s sexual orientation or gender identity or expression.²⁰

¹⁹ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 11-24-3.

²⁰ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 11-24-2.

● Housing

What is prohibited by the housing anti-discrimination law in Rhode Island?

The housing laws are intended to prohibit discrimination by owners and their agents from refusing to sell, rent, lease, let or otherwise withhold housing accommodations based on sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, marital status, or familial status.²¹ In addition, those who accept applications for loans or financial assistance to acquire, build, repair or maintain housing accommodations -- i.e., those involved in financing -- may neither inquire about sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, marital status, or familial status, nor discriminate on those bases.²²

Are any landlords exempt from the housing anti-discrimination law?

The main exemption to the law allows owners who live in 3-, 2-, or 1-family units to disregard the law if the owner lives in one of the units .²³ In addition, a religious organization or non-profit institution run by a religious organization can limit its non-commercial sales and rentals to persons of the same religion unless membership in the religion is restricted on account of one of the protected categories, including sexual orientation and gender identity or expression.²⁴

● Credit

What protections exist under Rhode Island anti-discrimination law with regard to credit?

Financial organizations such as banks, trust companies, savings banks, loan and investment banks, savings and loan associations, credit unions

²¹ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 34-37-4 (a).

²² R.I. Gen. Laws, § 34-37-4 (b).

²³ R.I. Gen. Laws, §§ 34-37-4.4, 34-37-4.5.

²⁴ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 34-37-4.2.

and any other commercial credit institution may not discriminate in granting or extending credit because of sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, or marital or familial status.²⁵

● Pursuing a Complaint

How do I file a complaint of discrimination?

You may file in person or in writing at the Rhode Island Commission For Human Rights (RICHR), 180 Westminster Street, 3rd floor, Providence, RI 02903. If you plan to go in person, you can call in advance to set up an appointment and find out what you need to bring. Their phone number is (401) 222-2661 (voice) and 401-222-2664 (TTY).

The complaint must be under oath and must state the name and address of the individual making the complaint as well as the name and address of the entity against which he or she is complaining (called the “respondent”). The complaint must set out the particulars of the alleged unlawful acts and (preferably) the times they occurred.

Do I need a lawyer?

No, but GLAD strongly encourages people to find lawyers to represent them throughout the process. Although the process is designed to allow people to represent themselves, there are many legal rules governing the RICHR process, and employers and other defendants are almost certain to have legal representation.

²⁵ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 34-37-4.3. See R.I. Gen. Laws, Title 19 for a list of additional financial organizations included within the scope of the non-discrimination law.

What are the deadlines for filing a complaint of discrimination?

A complaint must be filed with the RICHR within one year of the discriminatory act or acts.²⁶ There are very few exceptions for lateness, and GLAD encourages people to move promptly in filing claims.

Can I file more than one type of discrimination complaint at once, for example, if I believe I was fired both because I am a lesbian and Latina?

Yes, you can file several claims if you have suffered discriminatory treatment based on more than one personal characteristic. The state anti-discrimination laws for employment forbid taking an action against someone because of sexual orientation or gender identity or expression as well as race, color, religion, sex, disability, age, or country of ancestral origin²⁷.

In housing, the criteria are expanded to include marital status, familial status, and whether any member of the household has been a victim of domestic violence.²⁸

In places of public accommodation, the other protected characteristics are race, color, religion, country of ancestral origin, disability, age, sex, but not marital or familial status.²⁹

What happens after a complaint is filed with the RICHR?

The RICHR may initiate a preliminary investigation in an employment, credit, housing, or public accommodations case. If the RICHR determines it is probable that a defendant is or was engaged in unlawful practices, then the RICHR sends for “conciliation” or settlement proceedings in which the offender agrees to cease its ²⁶ R.I. Gen. Laws, §§ 28-5-17(a); 34-37-5 (b).

²⁷ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 28-5-7 (1)(i).

²⁸ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 34-37-4 (a).

²⁹ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 11-24-2.

unlawful practices and the complainant may be given an additional remedy.³⁰

If conciliation is unsuccessful, or at any time when the circumstances so warrant (including before investigation in egregious cases), the RICHR may serve a complaint and notice of hearing on the respondent. This process involves a trial type hearing but is not as formal as an actual trial in court. This process must be commenced within 2 years of when the complainant first filed his or her complaint with the RICHR.³¹

After the RICHR rules (either because it has found no probable cause to proceed, or because it has ruled on the merits after a hearing), any complainant, intervener, or respondent claiming to be aggrieved by a final order of the commission may obtain judicial review in Superior Court.³²

There are a few times when the case can be taken from the RICHR and filed in court. For example:

- Once the complaint has been pending at the RICHR for at least 120 days, (but less than 2 years and before any conciliation agreement has been made), the complainant may request permission to remove the case from the RICHR. That request should be granted, and the complainant then has 90 days from when he or she receives a “right to sue” letter to file the case in Superior Court.³³
- After the RICHR finds probable cause to credit the allegations in a complaint, either party may elect to terminate the proceedings at the RICHR and file in court as long as they do so within the strict timelines set by the RICHR rules.³⁴

³⁰ See generally, R.I. Gen. Laws, §§ 28-5-17, 34-37-5.

³¹ R.I. Gen. Laws, §§ 28-5-18; 34-37-5.

³² R.I. Gen. Laws, §§ 28-5-28; 34-37-6.

³³ R.I. Gen. Laws, §§ 28-5-24.1(a); 34-37-5(l).

³⁴ See R.I. Gen. Laws, §§ 28-5-24.1(c); 34-37-5(n).

- In addition, in housing cases, the RICHR may go to court to seek an order forbidding the respondent from selling, renting or otherwise disposing of the property at issue while the case is pending.³⁵

If probable cause is found lacking, the case is over unless you seek judicial review of the “lack of probable cause” finding. There are special rules and time constraints on this process which must be observed strictly.³⁶

What are the legal remedies the RICHR may award for discrimination if an individual wins his or her case there?

In all cases alleging different treatment discrimination, the remedies for a successful complainant in an intentional discrimination case may include compensatory damages (including for emotional distress), attorney’s fees (including expert fees and other litigation expenses), cease and desist orders, and any other action which will effectuate the purpose of the anti-discrimination laws.³⁷

In addition, in employment cases, a successful complaint may be entitled to a remedy involving hiring, reinstatement or upgrading of employment, back pay, and admission or restoration to union membership.³⁸ If the adverse job action was taken against the individual for a variety of reasons, and sexual orientation or gender identity or expression was not the sole motivating factor, the RICHR may limit the damages awarded.

In housing cases, the RICHR is also empowered to impose civil fines, with increasing severity depending on whether the offender has committed other discriminatory acts in the past.³⁹

³⁵ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 34-37-5(m).

³⁶ R.I. Gen. Laws, §§ 28-5-28; 34-37-6.

³⁷ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 28-5-24 (b)(employment); § 34-37-5(h) (housing cases); § 11-24-4 (public accommodations cases).

³⁸ R.I. Gen. Laws, §§ 28-5-24 (a)(1).

³⁹ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 34-37-5(h)(2).

When complainants prevail in court, the remedies named above may be awarded, as well as punitive damages when the challenged conduct is shown to be motivated by malice or ill will, or when the action involves reckless or callous indifference to the statutorily protected rights of others.⁴⁰ The only exception is that punitive damages may not be awarded against the State.

Can I also file a discrimination complaint with a federal agency?

Yes, in many cases. Federal employment non-discrimination law, called Title VII, applies only to employers with at least 15 employees, and complaints must be filed within 180 days of the discriminatory act with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC). But if you initially institute your complaint with RICHR and indicate that you wish to have the complaint cross-filed with the EEOC, then the time limit is extended to the earlier of 300 days or 30 days after RICHR has terminated the case.⁴¹ (People who work for federal agencies are beyond the scope of this publication.)

Someone who brings a claim of discrimination may sometimes pursue protections under both state and federal law. This is true because there may be overlapping provisions of state and federal law. For example, Title VII forbids employment discrimination based on race, sex, age, religion and disability (which includes HIV status), but does not expressly forbid discrimination based on “sexual orientation” or “gender identity.”

Because a growing number of courts and government agencies have recognized that the root of sexual orientation and gender identity discrimination is sex discrimination, the federal EEOC has recently indicated that it will accept both “gender identity” and “sexual orientation” discrimination complaints in order to investigate whether the complainant may have experienced prohibited “sex” discrimination.

⁴⁰ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 28-5-29.1 (employment); § 11-24-4 (public accommodations); § 34-37-5 (o) (3) (housing).

⁴¹ United States Code 42 sec. 2000e-5(e)(1).

For more information go to:

<http://www.eeoc.gov/eeoc/publications/upload/Gender-Stereotyping-LGBT-brochure-OLC.pdf>.

GLAD recommends that, where there may be overlapping state and federal jurisdiction, you explore filing with RICHR first but keep in mind the possibility of pursuing a federal claim as well. If you have a sexual orientation or gender identity complaint, you should check off “sex” as well as “sexual orientation” or “gender identity” as the bases for your claim and request that RICHR cross-file your complaint with the EEOC.

LGBT people who are discriminated against in housing may also be able to file a complaint with the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) in addition to RICHR. For more information go to:

http://portal.hud.gov/hudportal/HUD?src=/program_offices/fair_housing_equal_opp/LGBT_Housing_Discrimination.

Are there other options for filing a complaint for discrimination?

Possibly yes, depending on the facts of your particular situation.

1. Union: If you are a member of a union, your contract (collective bargaining agreement) may provide additional rights to you in the event of discipline, discharge or other job-related actions. In fact, if you obtain relief under your contract, you may decide not to pursue other remedies. Obtain and read a copy of your contract and contact a union steward about filing a complaint. Deadlines in contracts are strict. Bear in mind that if your union refuses to assist you with a complaint, you may have a discrimination action against them for their failure to work with you, or for failure of duty of fair representation.

2. State or Federal Court: After filing with RICHR or EEOC, or both, as discussed above, a person may decide to remove his or her discrimination case from those agencies and file the case in court. There are rules about when and how this must be done. An individual can request a right to sue letter from RICHR after a complaint has been pending for at least 120 days but not more than 2 years as long as RICHR has not secured a settlement or commenced a hearing on the case; the right to sue letter must be issued within 30 days after receiving the request, and the Superior Court complaint must be filed within 90 days of when the right to sue letter was issued.⁴² In 2010, the Rhode Island General Assembly passed a law that, in cases of employment discrimination, allows a person to file directly in state court up to three years from the last date of discrimination with no requirement to first file with RICHR.⁴³

In addition, a person may file a court case to address other claims which are not appropriately handled by discrimination agencies. For example, if a person is fired in violation of a contract, or fired without the progressive discipline promised in a handbook, or fired for doing something the employer doesn't like but which the law requires, then these matters are beyond the scope of what the agencies can investigate and the matter should be pursued in court. If a person has a claim for a violation of constitutional rights, such as a teacher or governmental employee who believes his or her free speech or equal protection rights were violated, then those matters must be heard in court.

What can I do if my employer fires me or my landlord evicts me for filing a complaint of discrimination?

It is illegal to retaliate in these circumstances, and the employee or tenant could file an additional complaint for retaliation. If an employer, employment agency or labor organization discriminates against a person in any manner because he or she has opposed a forbidden practice or has made a charge, testified or assisted in a complaint filed under the anti-discrimination laws, then the employee can state a claim of retaliation.⁴⁴

⁴² R.I. Gen. Laws, §§ 28-5-24.1; 34-37-5(1).

⁴³ R.I. Gen. Laws §§ 42-112-1 et seq.

What can I do to prepare myself before filing a complaint of discrimination?

Contact GLAD Answers by email or live chat at www.GLADAnswers.org or by phone at 800-455-GLAD (4523) any weekday between 1:30 and 4:30 p.m. to talk about options.

As a general matter, people who are still working with or residing under discriminatory conditions have to evaluate how filing a case will affect their job or housing, and if they are willing to assume those possible consequences. Of course, even if a person has been fired or evicted, he or she may decide it is not worth it to pursue a discrimination claim. This is an individual choice which should be made after gathering the information and advice necessary to make an informed choice.

Some people prefer to meet with an attorney to evaluate the strength of their claims before filing a case. It is always helpful if you bring to the attorney an outline of what happened on the job that you are complaining about, organized by date and with an explanation of who the various players are (and how to get in touch with them), what happened, who said what, and who else was present. Try to have on hand copies of your employee handbooks or personnel manuals, any contracts, job evaluations, memos, discharge letters and the like. If you are concerned about a housing matter, bring a copy of your lease, along with any notices and letters you have received from your landlord.

⁴⁴ R.I. Gen. Laws, §§ 28-5-7 (5); 34-37-4(m). See also R.I. Gen. Laws, § 28-51-2(b)(1)(ii) (“Every employer shall adopt a policy against sexual harassment which shall include a statement that it is unlawful to retaliate against an employee for filing a complaint of sexual harassment or for cooperating in an investigation of sexual harassment”); Provencher v. CVS Pharmacy, 76 F.E.P. Cases (BNA) 1569 (1st Cir. 1998)(upholding federal retaliation claim of gay man). The U.S. Supreme Court has broadly interpreted the anti-retaliation provisions in federal anti-discrimination laws. See Burlington Northern & Santa Fe Ry. Co. v. White, 548 U.S. 53 (2006).

Family Law

● Marriage & Civil Unions

Can same-sex couples legally marry in Rhode Island?

Yes, after many years of failed attempts and nearly two years after the passage of a civil unions bill in July 2011, on May 2, 2013, the Rhode Island General Assembly approved and Governor Lincoln Chafee signed a marriage equality law, An Act Relating to Domestic Relations-Persons Eligible to Marry,⁴⁵ that extended the right to marry to same-sex couples effective August 1, 2013.

This legislation also ends the ability of same-sex couples to enter into civil unions in Rhode Island on that same date and allows any couples already in a Rhode Island civil union to merge their civil union into marriage.⁴⁶

This made Rhode Island the sixth and last state in New England and the 10th state and 11th jurisdiction (including Washington, D.C.) in the United States to allow same-sex couples to marry. GLAD congratulates Marriage Equality Rhode Island and Rhode Islanders United for Marriage for their hard work in making this a reality.

How does one get married in Rhode Island?

The process for getting married in Rhode Island requires the following basic steps:

1. If at least one party is a resident of Rhode Island, the couple must obtain a license from the clerk in the city or town where ⁴⁵ See <http://webserver.rilin.state.ri.us/BillText/BillText13/HouseText13/H5015B.pdf>.

⁴⁶ R.I.G.L. § 15-3.1-12.

either party lives. If neither party is a resident of Rhode Island, the couple must obtain a license from the clerk of the city or town where the proposed marriage is to take place.⁴⁷

2. The couple must have the marriage solemnized (i.e. have a ceremony which is witnessed by at least two people in addition to the officiant) within 3 months of obtaining the license.⁴⁸
3. Once the ceremony has been performed, the person who performed it has 72 hours to return the license to the city or town where it was issued.⁴⁹
4. The clerk will then file the original, and the couple can receive an official certificate of their marriage.

How does religion affect getting married in Rhode Island?

The Act also reiterates the right of any religion to set any requirements it chooses on who may marry within that religion and the right of any clergy person, rabbi or similar official to refuse to marry any couple. It also provides further exemptions for religiously-controlled organizations and fraternal benefit organizations.

What happens to Rhode Island civil unions?

Effective August 1, 2013, Rhode Island no longer licenses new civil unions. If you already have a Rhode Island civil union and want to be married, there are two ways you can convert it into a marriage in Rhode Island:

1. You can see the municipal clerk where your civil union certificate was filed and request that it be merged into a marriage. There is no cost for this and you do not need to go through a marriage ceremony. The clerk is then required to provide you with a marriage certificate.

⁴⁷ R.I.G.L. § 15-2-1.

⁴⁸ R.I.G.L. §§ 15-2-8, 15-3-8

⁴⁹ R.I.G.L. § 15-3-12.

2. You can go through the normal process of getting married, and your civil union will then be merged into your marriage.

If you have a Rhode Island civil union and don't want to be married, you don't need to do anything. In that case, your civil union will continue as a civil union until you merge it into a marriage, dissolve it or your civil union partner dies.

How will the marriage of a same-sex couple be respected?

Rhode Island will generally respect the legal marriages of same-sex couples regardless of where the marriage was consecrated, and a Rhode Island marriage will be respected as a marriage anywhere that same-sex couples can marry. For the most up to date list go to: <http://www.freedomtomarry.org/states/>.

The 1996 federal law, the Defense of Marriage Act (DOMA), which prevented same-sex married couples from accessing the 1,138 federal laws that pertain to marriage, was finally ruled unconstitutional by the United States Supreme Court on June 26, 2013. This case, Windsor v. United States, was filed by the American Civil Liberties Union. GLAD filed the first challenge to DOMA in 2009, Gill v. OPM, and the legal framework developed in that case was used in subsequent cases, including the Windsor case. GLAD was also responsible for coordinating the amici briefs in that case.

This means that same-sex married couples living in places that recognize their marriages will have their marriages respected by the federal government for all purposes, e.g. taxes, Social Security (including SSDI and SSI), immigration, bankruptcy, FMLA, federal student financial aid, Medicaid, Medicare, veteran's benefits, TANF and many more.

For same-sex married couples who live in non-recognition states, even though their state will not recognize their marriage, the federal government will for some purposes (e.g. taxes and immigration) and not for others. GLAD and other legal organizations are advocating that the federal government respect the marriages of same-sex couples for all federal programs wherever they reside, but it will take some time to achieve this goal. For more detailed information about various federal programs and whether the program will recognize the marriages of same-sex couples who live in non-recognition states, go to: www.glad.org/doma.

Also, while DOMA was in effect, if an employer granted a spousal benefit to an employee (e.g. allowing the spouse of the employee to be on the company health plan), the employee was taxed on that benefit. Now that DOMA is gone, that is no longer the case. And since the IRS respects the marriages of same-sex couples wherever they live, this applies to all married same-sex couples regardless of where they reside.

Unfortunately, one issue that was not resolved by taking down DOMA was whether an employer can be legally required to provide health insurance to a same-sex spouse. If the company has a self-insured health plan, that plan is controlled by a federal agency called ERISA, and because the federal anti-discrimination employment law, Title VII, does not explicitly prohibit discrimination based on “sexual orientation,” some employers are claiming that they are not legally required to provide this benefit to same-sex spouses.

Also, if the health plan is insured and the owner of the plan is situated in a state that doesn't recognize the marriages of same-sex couples, some employers are choosing to discriminate against same-sex spouses.

However, for both self-insured and insured health plans, nothing prevents the employer from offering coverage to same-sex spouses. If your employer is discriminating against same-sex spouses, contact GLAD Answers.

What happens if we need to end our marriage?

Should the couple at some point wish to end the marriage, unless the couple lives in a state or country which does respect the marriage, it may not be possible to dissolve the marriage until one member of the couple moves to a place that does respect the marriage and lives there long enough to meet that state or country's residency requirement for divorce.

There are a small number of places that will allow a relationship that was granted there to be dissolved without a residency requirement if you can prove that neither spouse can dissolve it where they currently reside (e.g. Vermont, California, Delaware, District of Columbia, Minnesota and Canada).⁵⁰

Can Rhode Island same-sex couples get married anywhere else?

The list of states where same-sex couples can currently marry is found at: <http://www.freedomtomarry.org/states/>. There is information about getting married in Massachusetts, Vermont, Connecticut, New Hampshire, Maine, Rhode Island and Canada (same-sex couples can marry in Canada and there is no residency requirement) on GLAD's website at: www.glad.org/rights/publications/c/marriage/.

For information about getting married outside New England, contact Lambda Legal (www.lambdalegal.org).

Some people may be able to wed outside the United States, but some of these locales have residency and other requirements that make it difficult for non-citizens to marry.

For a detailed discussion of marrying in Rhode Island, see GLAD's publication, Rhode Island Marriage Guide For Same-Sex Couples, at <http://glad.org/uploads/docs/publications/ri-marriage-guide.pdf>. This publication includes the following topics:

- The detailed process for getting married in Rhode Island
- Religious exemptions

⁵⁰ See the following publication from the National Center for Lesbian Right: http://www.nclrights.org/wp-content/uploads/2013/07/Divorce_in_DOMA_States_Attorney_Guide.pdf.

- Rhode Island civil unions
- Couples who are already have a legal relationship from another state or country
- Some things to consider before getting married
- The protections marriage provides
- How your marriage will be respected
- Marriage and children
- Obtaining spousal health insurance from an employer
- Filing income taxes
- Divorce
- Legal protections in addition to marriage

● Domestic Partnership

What is domestic partnership?

Although it is a term used in many contexts, it most often means a status which recognizes an unmarried couple and their children as a family for certain limited purposes. This recognition may be given by a state or municipal governmental entity or by private businesses and organizations.

In the workplace context, employers may set criteria for domestic partnership as a way for employees to obtain certain fringe benefits for their partners and families which were previously limited to married spouses. The State of Rhode Island, some Rhode Island cities and towns and many private employers in Rhode Island offer domestic partner benefits such as coverage for the partner and his/her children under the employee's health plan.

In other contexts, "domestic partner" is also a shorthand term for family, replacing "lover," "friend," and "roommate." Some people call cohabitation agreements "domestic partner agreements." See GLAD's publications on Domestic Partnership for further information at <http://www.glad.org/rights/publications/c/relationships/>.

GOVERNMENTAL DOMESTIC PARTNERSHIP RECOGNITION IN RHODE ISLAND

Although Rhode Island does not have a statewide domestic partnership registry like some other states, the Rhode Island legislature has enacted several laws that provide certain benefits to same-sex couples.

In order to qualify, both partners must certify by affidavit that (1) both partners are at least 18 years old and mentally competent to contract, (2) that neither partner is married to anyone, (3) that the partners are not related by blood to a degree that would prohibit marriage in the State of Rhode Island, (4) that the partners live together and have lived together for at least one year, (5) that the partners are financially interdependent as evidenced by at least one of the following: (a) a domestic partnership agreement or relationship contract; (b) a joint mortgage or joint ownership of a primary residence; (c) two of (i) joint ownership of a motor vehicle; (ii) a joint checking account; (iii) joint credit account; (iv) joint lease and/or the domestic partner has been designated a beneficiary for the employee's will, retirement contract or life insurance.

What domestic partner benefits does Rhode Island offer to state employees?

In the summer of 2001, the Rhode Island legislature made domestic partner benefits available to state employees with respect to health insurance. It did so by changing the definition of "dependent" in state insurance laws. In 2006, Rhode Island extended these benefits to include family and medical leave to care for an ill partner⁵¹ and COBRA health benefits for a state employee's domestic partner,⁵² and in 2007, the legislature extended pension benefits managed through the Employee Retirement System of Rhode Island, to surviving domestic ⁵¹ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 28-48-1 (5).

⁵² R.I. Gen. Laws, § 36-12-2.4.

partners with whom the employee had lived for at least a year and were “financially interdependent.”⁵³

To qualify, a same-sex couple must certify by affidavit to the benefits director of the division of personnel that the couple meets the requirements listed above. Misrepresentations of information in the affidavit will result in an obligation to repay any benefits received and a fine up to $1000. Employees are further required to inform the benefits director at their place of employment if and when their relationship ends.

Are other benefits available to domestic partners of public employees?

A one-time benefit is available to the domestic partners of police officers, firefighters, corrections officers, or other emergency workers killed in the line of duty. Surviving partners have to certify by affidavit to the Board of Police Officer’s and Firefighter’s Relief that they were in a relationship meeting the criteria set forth above.

Some Rhode Island cities and towns offer domestic partner benefits such as coverage for the partner and his/her children under the employee’s health plan.

What other protections does state law provide to domestic partners?

In January 2010 the Rhode Island legislature passed a law⁵⁴ that gives a domestic partner control over the remains and the funeral and burial arrangements of his/her partner provided: (1) the partner meets the definition of domestic partner defined above, and (2) the deceased has not designated another person as his/her “funeral planning agent” as described below in the section “Legal Protections for Same-Sex Couples—Funeral Planning Documents.”⁵⁵ The law was championed by a gay man, Mark Goldberg, who had a five-week battle to claim the body of his partner of 17 years. Despite near unanimous passage, it took a legislative override of the Governor’s veto to finally enact the law.

⁵³ See R.I. Pub. Laws. 2007, ch. 510.

⁵⁴ House Bill 2009-H 5294 which amends R.I. Gen. Laws, §§ 5-33.2-24 & 23-4-10.

⁵⁵ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 5-33.2-24(2)(i).

Although it is an important step forward to have this protection for domestic partners, it does require that you prove that your relationship meets certain criteria at a time of tragedy. The better way to achieve this protection is to name your partner as your “funeral planning agent,” as discussed below. That agent takes precedence over everyone—spouse, domestic partner, and blood relatives.

DOMESTIC PARTNERSHIP RECOGNITION BY PRIVATE COMPANIES AND ORGANIZATIONS

What kinds of domestic partner benefits may private employers and organizations provide?

Private employers can provide to domestic partners any benefits they wish -- whether health insurance, family medical or bereavement leave, equal pension benefits, relocation expenses, or access to company facilities. Private organizations, e.g. a gym, country club, etc., can extend family membership or other family benefits to domestic partners.

DIFFERENCES IN BENEFITS PROVIDED TO DOMESTIC PARTNERS VERSUS DIFFERENT-SEX SPOUSES

Are there any tax consequences associated with receiving domestic partnership benefits?

Yes. Even when employers provide domestic partner benefits, in most instances federal laws require different tax treatment of the benefits for domestic partners as compared to married spouses. An employee must pay a federal income tax on the “fair market value” that the employer is paying for his or her domestic partner’s health insurance benefits unless the domestic partner qualifies as a tax dependent of the employee for health insurance purposes. In most states, employees must also pay a state income tax on these benefits, but Rhode Island exempts employees from state income tax on health benefits extended to a domestic partner or civil union partner.⁵⁶

⁵⁶ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 44-30-12(c)(6).

What other differences exist for domestic partners versus different-sex spouses?

For pensions, a domestic partner has no right to sign off if their partner decides to name someone other than them as the beneficiary of a pension although a spouse would have that right. In addition, a domestic partner has no right comparable to that of a spouse to sign off on their partner's designation of another person for survivor benefits.

● Legal Protections for Same-Sex Couples

What steps can a couple take to safeguard their legal relationship in Rhode Island regardless of whether they have a marriage or civil union?

1. Relationship Agreement or Contract: Cohabitation agreements regarding property and finances are a good way for couples to sort out their affairs in writing before a separation. As long as the contract is not about sexual services, it has a good chance of being upheld as valid as long as it complies with the requisites for a valid contract.⁵⁷ Bear in mind that as in any state, specific provisions concerning children may or may not be enforced according to their terms because it is always in the court's power to determine the best interests of children. (See discussion below concerning parenting agreements.)

2. Power of Attorney: Any competent person may appoint another person as his or her "attorney-in-fact" for financial matters in the event the one becomes incapacitated or disabled.⁵⁸ If no such appointment is made, then a "family" member will be empowered to make decisions for the disabled or incapacitated individual.

⁵⁷ See Doe v. Burkland, 808 A.2d 1090, 1094 (R.I. 2002) (allowing contract claim by former same-sex partner; "The mere existence of a sexual relationship between two parties does not impair the right to contract with each other for consideration independent of the relationship.").

⁵⁸ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 18-16-1 et seq.

3. Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care: Since medical care providers look to next-of-kin to make health care decisions for an incapacitated individual, an unmarried person must appoint a health care agent if he or she wishes another person to make those decisions instead of the family member. Under R.I. Gen. Laws, § 23-4.10-2, a person may appoint a health care agent to make decisions -- whether for a limited amount of time or indefinitely. The attorney-in-fact may then make decisions for you -- either immediately or upon your becoming incompetent to make decisions. Even after you give another person a health care power of attorney, you may make decisions for yourself if that is what you wish and as long as you are competent to do so.

The power of attorney can specify the authority of the agent to make decisions on your behalf, and also state what kinds of treatments you do not desire, including treatments which might keep you alive. You can also specify your wishes regarding organ and tissue gifts after death.

The power of attorney must be signed by two witnesses, at least one of whom is not related to the principal, and neither of whom is the agent of a health care provider or their employee. The power of attorney can be revoked at any time by creating a new power of attorney or by a clear expression of revocation. People often give a copy to their doctors and sometimes to family members.

4. Will: Without a will, a deceased unmarried person's property passes to: (1) his or her children; (2) his or her family; (3) if next-of-kin cannot be located, to the state.⁵⁹ If the person wishes to provide for others, such as his or her partner, a will is essential. Even if a person has few possessions, he or she can name in the will who will administer his or her estate. If a person has children, he or she can nominate the future guardian of the child in a will.⁶⁰

⁵⁹ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 33-1-1 et seq.

⁶⁰ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 33-5-1 et seq.

5. Funeral Planning Documents: Rhode Island permits a person to name another as his or her “funeral planning agent” with sole responsibility and authority to make any and all arrangements and decisions about funeral services, and burial or disposition of remains, including cremation.⁶¹ The document must be signed and notarized by the individual.⁶² To prevent any disputes with family members, it is preferable to give the instructions to the person you want to take care of matters, as well as to family members.

Even absent these documents, a surviving same-sex partner who can prove that their relationship satisfied the state criteria for being “domestic partners” (read the “Domestic Partnership” section above) can also assume control of the funeral and burial process. However, this requires proving certain facts about your relationship at a time of tragedy and does not control if someone else has been appointed as the “funeral planning agent.” The best way to ensure that your partner is able to make these decisions is to name your partner your “funeral planning agent.”

6. Living Will: Within a durable power of attorney for health care, language may be inserted stating what the individual wishes regarding termination of life support, preferences for types of medical care, or limits on the agent’s authority.⁶³

Does a person need an attorney to get these documents?

GLAD recommends working with an attorney on these documents. Although some forms are available, the form may not be suited to your individual needs and wishes. Moreover, attorneys may be able to help effectuate your goals, for example, by drafting a will in a way which is more likely to deter a will contest by unhappy family members, or drafting a durable power of attorney for health care with specific instructions about the types of treatments to which you do and don’t consent, and the exact scope of the agent’s authority.

⁶¹ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 5-33.3-3.

⁶² R.I. Gen. Laws, § 5-33.3-4.

⁶³ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 23-4.10-2.

If a couple separates, what is the legal status of a Relationship/Partnership Agreement/Contract?

Upon separation, the terms of a Relationship or Partnership Agreement/Contract will come into play if the couple has one. Absent an agreement, couples can get involved in costly and protracted litigation about property and financial matters but without the divorce system to help them sort through it. The Rhode Island Supreme Court has recognized that, under some circumstances, contract theories and equitable principles may apply to address the property and financial matters of a separating same-sex couple even without a written agreement.⁶⁴ Written agreements offer vastly greater security, however, providing the court with a roadmap as to the intentions of the parties.

If a person has changed his or her mind about who should be his or her attorney-in-fact, or health care agent, or beneficiary or executor under a will, or funeral planning agent, then those documents should be revoked -- with notice to all persons who were given copies of those documents, and new documents should be prepared which reflect the person's present wishes.

● Adoption

Can a single gay individual adopt a child in Rhode Island?

Yes. Rhode Island law provides that any person may petition to adopt another person who is under age 18.⁶⁵

Can same-sex partners together adopt a child in Rhode Island?

Though the question of joint adoption by an unmarried couple is not addressed expressly by the Rhode Island statutes on adoption or by any authoritative ruling by the State Supreme Court, joint and second parent adoptions have routinely been granted at the Family Court level. Feel ⁶⁴ See Doe v. Burkland, 808 A.2d 1090 (R.I. 2002).

⁶⁵ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 15-7-4 (a).

free to contact GLAD for more information, or if you encounter any difficulties. Also, with the advent of marriage and civil unions in Rhode Island, a married or civil union couple can do a step-parent adoption.

What is the advantage of doing a second parent or joint adoption?

A joint adoption means that the child now has two legal parents for all purposes. The law will reflect the actual family situation, which often gives great comfort and security to everyone involved.

Without an adoption, the non-legal parent needs special permission to seek medical care for the child, or to attend school meetings. With an adoption, the adopting parent is a legal parent entitled to make decisions for the child in day-to-day and emergency matters without special authorization.

With an adoption, if one parent dies, the other parent will automatically assume custody of the child without a fight from others. In addition, the child would have the automatic right to inherit from the deceased parent, even if there is no will, and possibly to collect social security survivor benefits. Finally, if the couple separates, then the adoption means that both parents have the right to custody and visitation, and any disputes will be decided based on what is in the best interests of the child rather than on who is the legal parent.

If we are married or in a civil union and both our names are on the child's birth certificate, do we still need to do a second parent adoption?

GLAD strongly recommends that you still need to do a second parent adoption. Because the marriage or civil union could encounter a lack of respect in some states, relying on the fact of the marriage or civil union alone to protect their children is not the best approach. It is advisable to continue the practice of securing a second-parent adoption in order to obtain a decree of legal parenthood that should be generally recognized and is independent of the marriage or civil union.

This document can only provide general information about the need to establish legal parenthood independent of a civil union. For you and your children, we cannot urge more strongly that you consult an attorney about undertaking co-parent adoption. Contact GLAD for more information and to obtain referrals to adoption attorneys.

- Miller-Jenkins Sidebar

Relying on a partner's good will, or even on the fact that a child was born into a marriage or civil union, is not the best way to ensure ongoing parental rights of both parents if a couple later separates. A case in point is Miller-Jenkins v. Miller-Jenkins. This case has been in litigation since 2004, has involved two state Supreme Courts (Vermont and Virginia), and has already made several trips to the U.S. Supreme Court.

In that case, Janet and Lisa had a child, Isabella, while they were in a civil union. Janet did not adopt. After the couple separated, Lisa moved to Virginia and used both the lack of an adoption, and Virginia's laws hostile to same-sex relationships to thwart Janet's contact with their daughter. Finally, however, the Virginia courts agreed that the Vermont courts had the authority to make custody and visitation decisions.

After many attempts to get Lisa to allow Janet visitation rights, in November, 2009, the Vermont Family Court issued an order granting Janet responsibility for the day-to-day care of Isabella while granting Lisa liberal visitation rights. The transfer of custody was to have taken place on January 1, 2010. However, Lisa failed to appear at the appointed time, and an arrest warrant was issued. Lisa and Isabella still have not been found.

GLAD and local counsel represent Janet in the Vermont proceedings. For more information about the case, go to <http://www.glad.org/work/cases/miller-jenkins-v-miller-jenkins>.

If same-sex parents raise a child together, but only one is the “legal” parent (because of birth or adoption), then what rights does the other parent have vis-à-vis the child?

The rights of a co-parent were addressed by the Rhode Island Supreme Court in a ruling handed down in September, 2000. When such a person can show she is a de facto parent, then she is entitled to a court hearing to address what custody, visitation and support arrangement is in the best interests of the child.⁶⁶ To be qualified as a de facto parent, the legal parent must have consented to and fostered the relationship between the child and the de facto parent; the child and de facto parent must have lived together; the de facto parent must have performed parental functions for the child to a significant degree; and the child and de facto parent must have developed a parent-child bond.

One other helpful point about the Rubano case is that it clarifies that a parenting agreement can be used to bar a parent from claiming that his or her former partner has no grounds for making a custody or visitation claim. In some cases, parties to the agreement may also seek to enforce the agreements in court.

Regardless of the status of a person’s legal rights, it is critical to remember that children form strong attachments to their parental caregivers regardless of legal labels. Separating a child from a person who has acted as their parent can be a devastating loss for a child. Moreover, court proceedings to establish de facto parenthood will be painful and costly, so anything people can do outside of court to make decisions together about a child’s interests is strongly encouraged. See GLAD’s publication: Protecting Families: Standards for Child Custody in Same-Sex Relationships at: <http://glad.org/uploads/docs/publications/protecting-families.pdf>.

⁶⁶ Rubano v. DiCenzo, 759 A.2d. 959 (2000).

Short of joint adoption or second parent adoption, how can a family protect the interests of the child vis-à-vis his or her second parent?

There are a number of steps that can be taken, although none offer the security of a second parent adoption.

1. Co-parenting Agreement: An agreement setting out the parents' expectations about each other's roles, and their plans in the event of separation, disability or death. While these agreements will likely not be enforced by courts per se, they very well could be by other entities in Rhode Island, and they are also important and potentially influential indicators of what the couple believed was in the best interests of the child.

2. Wills: The legal parent may nominate a guardian of the child upon the parent's death.⁶⁷ These wishes are given strong preferences by courts. Of course, if the child has another legal parent living, then that person would have priority over the nominated guardian.

3. Power of Attorney and Temporary Guardianship: This document is signed by the parent and authorizes another person (the attorney-in-fact and temporary guardian) to make a wide variety of decisions and arrangements for the child, including matters related to school, medical care and finances.

4. Co-guardianship: While there is no express provision in the law allowing for appointment of co-guardians, and although the practice varies to some degree across the State, some probate courts allow a parent to name the other non-legal parent as a co-guardian so that the other parent may secure medical attention for the child and act as a parent.⁶⁸ This status is not permanent, and may be terminated by a court.⁶⁹

⁶⁷ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 33-15.1-7.

⁶⁸ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 33-15.1-5.

⁶⁹ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 33-15-18 ("The court shall remove any...guardian...upon finding that the [guardian] has not fulfilled, or is no longer able to fulfill, the duties of the appointment as set forth by the order itself and/or the limited guardianship and guardianship law.").

● Custody and Visitation

What standards should same-sex couples with children who are breaking up maintain?

Same-sex couples with children who are breaking up should:

1. Support the rights of LGBT parents;
2. Honor existing relationships regardless of legal labels;
3. Honor the children's existing parental relationships after the break-up;
4. Maintain continuity for the children;
5. Seek a voluntary resolution;
6. Remember that breaking up is hard to do;
7. Investigate allegations of abuse;
8. The absence of agreements or legal relationships should not determine outcome;
9. Treat litigation as a last resort; and
10. Refuse to resort to homophobic/transphobic laws and sentiments.

For more detailed information about these standard see the publication Protecting Families: Standards for LGBT Families at: <http://www.glad.org/uploads/docs/publications/protecting-families-standards-for-lgbt-families.pdf>.

If I have a child from a former heterosexual relationship, and I am now involved with a same-sex partner, can my “ex” use this against me to deny me custody or visitation of my kids?

In Rhode Island, the question should turn on whether there is evidence of direct harm to the best interests of the child, although there has been no reported case on the subject. As a general matter, “[i]n any proceeding or suit in any court, neither parent shall have any natural priority or preference in any matter relating to their minor children.”⁷⁰

⁷⁰ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 33-15.1-3.

Specific acts of parental misconduct are relevant to determinations of child custody.⁷¹

What are the factors for making custody determinations generally?

In Rhode Island, the leading case regarding the best interests of the child is Pettinato v. Pettinato.⁷² The Rhode Island legislature has not statutorily defined the factors that comprise a child's best interests, but in the Pettinato case, the Rhode Island Supreme Court listed eight factors that should be considered by courts to determine the best interests of the child:

- The wishes of the child's parent or parents regarding the child's custody;
- The reasonable preference of the child, if the court deems the child to be of sufficient intelligence, understanding, and experience to express a preference;
- The interaction and interrelationship of the child with the child's parent or parents, the child's siblings, and any other person who may significantly affect the child's best interest;
- The child's adjustment to the child's home, school, and community;
- The mental and physical health of all individuals involved;
- The stability of the child's home environment;
- The moral fitness of the child's parents; and ⁷¹ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 15-5-3.1(b).

⁷² 582 A.2d 909 (R.I. 1990).

- The willingness and ability of each parent to facilitate a close and continuous parent-child relationship between the child and the other parent.⁷³

In addition, Rhode Island Law requires courts to “consider evidence of past or present domestic violence, if proven, as a factor not in the best interest of the child.”⁷⁴

As to visitation, the law provides that whichever parent does not have primary physical custody of the child shall be granted a reasonable right of visitation, unless there is a showing of cause why the right should not be granted.⁷⁵

How is “sexual orientation” used in custody proceedings?

In a divorce or paternity proceeding, a parent may argue that the other parent’s sexual orientation is causing detriment to the child. Any number of reasons can be cited, such as that the gay or lesbian parent’s sexual orientation is causing other people to tease or ostracize the child, or that the parent is a bad role model. Or a parent may argue that the ex’s new partner is not good for the child. In the overwhelming majority of circumstances, these matters can be answered to the satisfaction of a judge in a way which does not penalize the gay parent or the child.⁷⁶ Contact GLAD for further resources.

Does it matter if my “ex” knew or suspected I was gay or lesbian before we separated?

It can make a difference with respect to future modification of court orders for custody. People can seek to modify court orders for custody when there has been a substantial change in circumstances. If a spouse did not know of your sexual orientation at the time of the court proceedings but learns it later, he or she may argue that this is a ⁷³ Pettinato 582 A.2d at 913-914.

⁷⁴ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 15-5-16.

⁷⁵ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 15-5-16(d)(1).

⁷⁶ Compare Suddes v. Spinelli, 703 A.2d 605, 607 (R.I. 1997) (visitation rights only denied “in an extreme situation in which the children’s physical, mental or moral health would be endangered”).

substantial change of circumstances and that the custody issues should be litigated anew. Of course, if your spouse or former heterosexual partner knew of your sexual orientation at the time of the court proceedings establishing custody, a modification petition on those grounds would be pointless.⁷⁷

If circumstances have changed so that a modification complaint is appropriate, then the standard once again is what arrangement is in the best interests of the child.

Can a court keep my kids from visiting when my partner is present?

Courts have the power to do this, but unless the partner is causing harm to the child -- a very high standard -- visitation should not be restricted.⁷⁸

● Domestic Violence

What is domestic violence?

Under the laws for the Family Court and the District Court, “domestic abuse” means the occurrence of one or more of the following acts between people who are family members, parents, or persons who are or have been in a substantive dating relationship within the past year, or against the minor child of one of the parties:

- attempting to cause or causing physical harm;
- placing another in fear of imminent serious physical harm;
- causing another to engage involuntarily in sexual relations by force, threat of force, or duress; and ⁷⁷ See King v. King, 114 R.I. 329, 330, 333 A.2d 135, 137 (1975)(changed circumstances shown when four years passed and boy passed from childhood to adolescence); Kenney v. Hickey, 486 A.2d 1079, 486 A.2d 1079, 1082 (R.I. 1985).

⁷⁸ Compare Seravo v. Seravo, 525 A.2d 922 (R.I. 1987) (father’s visitation rights terminated where he sexually assaulted his child and the child was still traumatized from the abuse).

- stalking or cyberstalking.⁷⁹

Note that the District Court rules also prohibit abuse between cohabitants and apply to substantive dating relationships regardless of the age of the parties, and are thus broader than the Family Court provisions.

Do the domestic violence laws apply to people in same-sex relationships?

Yes, if you are married or in a civil union. Even if you are not, some same-sex relationships are covered under the definition of “substantive dating relationship.” This includes relationships which are “significant and personal/intimate” based on the length of time of the relationship, the type of relationship, and the frequency of interaction between the parties.⁸⁰ Other relationships may be covered if partners or former partners share legal parentage of a child.⁸¹ As well, in the District Court, partners who live together or have lived together within the past three years may be considered “cohabitants.”⁸²

How do I get a court order protecting me from an abusive partner?

The process is intended to be simple. You may go to the District Court or Family Court where you live, or if you have just fled your home, in the town where you used to live. You will need to fill out a complaint alleging “abuse” as defined above. The complaint is under oath, so everything you say must be true. Try to put in as much detail as possible demonstrating why you feel threatened.

If you are in danger of harm, the Court can grant you a temporary protective order for not more than 21 days, which can include an order restraining your abuser from hurting you, barring him or her from entering your home, assigning child custody and requiring payment of ⁷⁹ See R.I. Gen. Laws, § 15-15-1 (2) (family court); 8-8.1-1(3) (district court).

⁸⁰ R.I. Gen. Laws §§ 15-5-1 (5); 8-8.1-1(3).

⁸¹ R.I. Gen. Laws § 15-5-1 (3).

⁸² R.I. Gen. Laws § 8-8.1-1 (1).

child support. If the courts are closed (nights, holidays, weekends), you can contact the local or state police, who will be able to contact a judge on call to handle these matters.

The defendant/abuser must be served with (given a copy of) the court order and notified of his or her right to contest the order in court. Once the order is issued, it is filed with the state Bureau of Criminal Identification and is effective state-wide. Violation of a court order of which an abuser has notice is a criminal offense.⁸³

The Court will also assign a date for another hearing at which the temporary order will either be extended or dismissed. At that time, both parties often have attorneys. You should bring with you any witnesses who can substantiate the abuse, as well as copies of threatening letters, medical records, or any other documents which can show how you have been harmed and why you are afraid. Expect to be asked questions by both the judge and the attorney(s) for the abuser/defendant. You have the same right to ask questions.

If for some reason you decide not to go through with the legal process, you should show up in court anyway and ask that the order be dismissed. If you don't show up, it is possible that the court will think you are unreliable and may hold that against you should you need legal help in the future.

There are other laws which prohibit stalking, harassing and trespassing which may apply to you, but are beyond the scope of this document.

If I go to court, will I out myself for all purposes?

Not necessarily. Some courts try to be sensitive to the fact that some people seeking orders may be closeted, or may be in a same-sex relationship which they do not want revealed. If you proceed in the District Court rather than the Family Court, you do not have to claim that you are in a "substantive dating relationship," but only that you are ⁸³ See generally, R.I. Gen. Laws, §§ 15-15-1 et seq.; 8-8.1-1 et seq.

cohabitants to get a protective order, and thus you may be able to conceal your sexual orientation if you choose.⁸⁴

Where can I go to get help?

In addition to the local police and district attorney, you can call the Rhode Island Coalition Against Domestic Violence at (401) 467-9940, www.ricadv.org, or Day One, the Sexual Assault and Trauma Resource Center, at (401) 421-4100 or (800) 494-8100, www.dayoneri.org.

Does domestic violence play a role in custody decisions?

Yes. Evidence that a parent has in the past, or is presently, abusing the other parent or the child is a factor showing that that parent is not acting in the best interests of the child.⁸⁵

⁸⁴ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 8-8.1-1.

⁸⁵ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 15-5-16.

Hate Crimes / Sex Laws / Police

● Hate Crimes & Violence

How does Rhode Island define a “hate crime”?

In Rhode Island, a hate crime is “any crime motivated by bigotry and bias, including, but not limited to threatened, attempted, or completed acts that appear after investigation to have been motivated by racial, religious, ethnic, sexual orientation, gender, gender identity or expression, or disability prejudice.”⁸⁶ “Gender identity or expression” was added in 2012.

In order to track hate crimes, the State has also set up a reporting system so that incidents alleged are centrally recorded.⁸⁷ All police departments within the state are required to have training on identifying, responding to and reporting hate crimes,⁸⁸ and must report monthly the occurrence of such crimes to the state police, who must maintain a permanent record of the offenses, categorized by community of occurrence, type of offense, and target.⁸⁹

Does Rhode Island have increased sentencing for hate crimes?

Yes, Rhode Island law establishes additional penalties for crimes motivated by hatred or animus toward the victim’s actual or perceived, religion, ethnicity, race, gender, sexual orientation or gender.⁹⁰ Even though “gender identity or expression” was added in 2012 as one of the ⁸⁶ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 42-28-46 (a)(2).

⁸⁷ R.I. Gen. Laws § 42-28-46 (b).

⁸⁸ R.I. Gen. Laws § 42-28.2-8.1.

⁸⁹ R.I. Gen. Laws § 42-28-46 (b).

⁹⁰ R.I. Gen. Laws § 12-19-38 (a).

“protected distinguishing characteristics,” it was not added to the hate crimes sentencing statute.

Where can I call if I think I’ve been a victim of a hate crime?

Begin by contacting the local police. Police officers do not actually charge people with hate crimes, but will need to provide the prosecutor with evidence that the crime was motivated by bias, so be sure to explain all of the factors that make you think this was a hate crime. You may also contact the criminal division of the Attorney General’s office at (401) 274-4400.

For support and advocacy, contact: Day One, Sexual Assault and Trauma Resource of Rhode Island, (401) 421-4100 or (800) 494-8100.

What other options do I have if I think I have been a victim of a hate crime?

In addition to pursuing your rights in the criminal justice system, you can contact the Office of the Civil Rights Advocate of the Attorney General’s Office at (401) 274-4400. The Civil Rights Advocate is authorized to receive complaints, to conduct investigations, education and training, and to bring civil actions for injunctions or other equitable relief to address physical threats, trespassing, property destruction, or harassment that interfere “with the exercise or enjoyment by any other person of rights secured by the United States Constitution or the laws of the United States or of rights secured by the Constitution of Rhode Island or laws of the state.”⁹¹ In addition, a fine of up to $5,000 may be imposed.

An injunction under this provision does not prevent you, depending on the circumstances, from seeking monetary damages for harms you experienced from the crime committed against you.

⁹¹ R.I. Gen. Laws, §§ 42-9.3-1; 42-9.3-2.

In what ways might the recently passed federal hate crimes law help to investigate and prosecute hate crimes?

The *Matthew Shepard and James Byrd, Jr. Hate Crimes Prevention Act*⁹² was passed by Congress on October 22, 2009 and was signed into law by President Obama on October 28, 2009. It expands the 1969 United States federal hate crime law to include crimes motivated by a victim's actual or perceived gender, sexual orientation, gender identity or disability.

First, and perhaps foremost, the Act allows local and state law enforcement agencies to apply for the following federal assistance from the U.S. Attorney General:

- investigative, technical, forensic or prosecutorial support for criminal investigations and prosecutions,
- grants for extraordinary expenses associated with the investigation and prosecution of hate crimes, and
- grants to combat hate crimes committed by juveniles.

In providing assistance to local and state authorities, the priorities are hate crimes:

- where the offender(s) has committed crimes in more than one state, or
- that occur in rural areas which do not have the resources needed to prosecute such crimes.

Second, for hate crimes that in some way involve crossing state or national borders, or involve or affect interstate commerce, and where a state does not have jurisdiction or has requested federal assumption of jurisdiction, or where the federal government feels that justice has not been served or that U.S. prosecution is in the public interest, the Act authorizes the federal government to prosecute the case.

⁹² See H.R. 2647 at <http://thomas.loc.gov/cgi-bin/query/F?c111:6:./temp/~c111X7TYvf:e1999565:>

The Act also requires the Federal Bureau of Investigation to track statistics on hate crimes on the basis of gender and gender identity (statistics for the other groups are already tracked) and on crimes committed by and against juveniles. This is the first federal law to explicitly extend legal protections to transgender persons.

● Criminal Sex Laws

Does Rhode Island have a sodomy law?

Rhode Island repealed its sodomy law in 1998. All of the criminal laws dealing with forcible sex, sex with minors, or public sexual activity apply equally regardless of the sex of the parties involved.

Does Rhode Island have any other criminal laws which are applied to gay people?

No. All laws apply equally to gay and non-gay people.

Most people arrested for sexual activity are arrested for activity occurring out of doors. The disorderly conduct law is a misdemeanor and forbids (a) intentional, knowing or reckless (b) exposure of the genitals to the view of others (c) under circumstances where the person's conduct is likely to cause affront, distress or alarm to other persons.⁹³

Note that the offense has several elements. First, the exposure must be intentional, knowing or reckless in the mind of the perpetrator. Second, it must occur in circumstances where another person would likely be alarmed or distressed. Thus, the law should not be applied to consensual sexual activity.

⁹³ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 11-45-1 (a)(8).

This law has been applied to people having sexual encounters in “public.” Bear in mind that sexual activity involving exposure of the genitals should not be illegal simply because it takes place outdoors, in parked cars, or on public lands. Instead, a great deal depends on the time of day, the level of seclusion (e.g., behind remote bushes or beyond fences) and the overall circumstances.

The State has a legitimate law enforcement interest in protecting the general public from open displays of sex -- whether the sex is between people of the same sex or of a different sex. But socializing and expressions of same-sex affection that does not involve the touching of genitals or buttocks or exposure of those is not illegal, regardless of where it occurs. No one should be arrested or hassled for hand-holding, cruising, talking, flirting, foot-tapping, or non-sexual touching.

As a practical matter, regardless of one’s rights, having sex outdoors is risky business. For one, based on numerous reports to us, we believe that some police will overlook sexual activity of non-gay people occurring outdoors, but arrest gay people engaged in sexual activity in the same types of venues. Another concern is that some police “hunt” for gay people having sex outdoors in park lands and rest areas -- sometimes in uniform and sometimes as undercover decoys. Either way, a person can be charged with the disorderly conduct law and have the report of his or her arrest printed in the local newspaper.

Does Rhode Island have a “sex offender registry” type of law?

Yes. Every state now has such a law, although the terms differ from state to state. In Rhode Island, the law does not specify as registrable offenses any statutes of particular concern to gay people, such as the disorderly conduct law.

What types of crimes are deemed to be “sex offenses”?

As you would expect with a law designed to ensnare dangerous and violent predators, most of the crimes involve convictions for violent sexual offenses or offenses involving children. For a full list of sex offenses, see R.I. Gen. Laws, §§ 11-37.1-2, 11-37.1-3.

How can I find out what charges I have been convicted of?

You can contact the Department of the Attorney General, Attn.: Bureau of Criminal Identification, 150 S. Main St., Providence, RI 02903, or call (401) 421-5268. You can send a signed and notarized release for information along with a copy of your identification, self-addressed stamped envelope, and a check or money order for $5. You may also obtain a BCI printout by visiting the BCI at the Dep't of the Attorney General and possessing proper identification and $5 check or money order.

What obligations are imposed on “sex offenders”?

Most sex offenders will have to register annually with the local law enforcement agency and provide personal data, work information, and other identification.⁹⁴ All offenders required to register must do so for ten years following their release from confinement or placement on parole, supervised release or probation and must update their information on a quarterly basis for the first two years. Those determined to be sexually violent predators or recidivists, and those who have been convicted of certain aggravated offenses on the other hand, must register and provide updated information on a quarterly basis for life.⁹⁵

Information in the registry can be freely shared with law enforcement agencies, but is generally not made available to the public.⁹⁶ When dealing with an offender who is determined to have a moderate or high risk for re-offense, the community must be notified affirmatively and identifying information about the offender will be made available on the websites of the state police and court system, although there is a legal procedure whereby the offender can seek to block release of the information.⁹⁷

⁹⁴ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 11-37-1.3 (a).

⁹⁵ R.I. Gen. Laws, §§ 11-37.1-4.

⁹⁶ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 11-37.1-11.

⁹⁷ R.I. Gen. Laws, §§ 11-37.1-12, -13.

What is the age of consent for sexual activity?

Generally, the age of consent for sexual activity is 16.⁹⁸

● Police Harassment

I am often told by police to “move along” from public areas. Is that legal?

Not necessarily. If the area is public and not posted as having particular hours, you generally have a right to be there as long as you are not engaged in any unlawful activity. Public places belong to everyone, and are likely also places of public accommodation to which anti-discrimination rules apply. Even if police officers want to deter crime, or suspect some kind of unlawful intent, they have no general right to request people to move from one place to another unless there is unlawful conduct.⁹⁹

What are the general rules about interaction with police?

The presence of individuals who appear to be gay, lesbian, bisexual or transgender -- whether because such individuals are displaying symbols such as a rainbow flag or pink triangle or for any other reason -- should not trigger any special scrutiny by a police officer, other than a concern for the safety and well-being of those persons that the officer would have for any other person.

Police may, of course, approach a person, and make inquiries. If an officer has “reasonable suspicion” that a crime has been committed or is about to be committed, he or she may briefly detain an individual, or stop the person for purposes of investigation.¹⁰⁰

⁹⁸ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 11-37-6.

⁹⁹ Kent v. Dulles, 357 U.S. 116, 126 (1958).

¹⁰⁰ State v. Abdullah, 730 A.2d 1074 (R.I. 1997); State v. Bennett, 430 A.2d 424 (R.I. 1981); Terry v. Ohio, 392 U.S. 1, 16 (1968). An arrest can only occur upon “probable cause” that a crime has been committed. R.I. Const., Art. I, § 6.

Police sometimes detain a person whom they believe has committed or is about to commit a crime. If the person is not charged with a crime, he or she must be released after two hours.¹⁰¹

What can I do if I believe I have been improperly treated by the police?

Complaints may be made to any individual police department for matters concerning its officers. Many departments have their own Internal Affairs Divisions which receive and investigate civilian complaints against police officers.

Complaints concerning the State Police in Rhode Island should be made to the Rhode Island State Police Office of Professional Standards, which you can contact at in writing at 311 Danielson Pike, North Scituate, RI 02857, or by phone at (401) 444-1004. Citizen complaint forms are also available on the State Police website at <http://www.risp.state.ri.us/docs/PSU/PSUCitizenComplaintFormEnglish.pdf>. Complaints should include as much information as possible about the incident, including your name and contact information; the name, rank and badge number (if known) of the officer; the location, date, time and details of the incident; and the names and contact information of any witnesses. Please let GLAD know whenever you make a complaint so that we can track the responsiveness of the various police departments.

In some cases, an individual may decide to pursue a lawsuit -- because of injuries, improper detainment, or for some other reason. These matters are highly specialized, and GLAD can make attorney referrals. People can also attempt to seek help from the Attorney General's Office, Criminal Division at (401) 274-4400.

¹⁰¹ See R.I. Gen. Laws, § 12-7-1.

Students' Rights

● Harassment and Discrimination at School

Are there any laws protecting gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender students in Rhode Island?

Yes. In 2011, Rhode Island passed the “Safe Schools Act” that applies to all school districts, charter schools, career and technical schools and approved private day or residential schools in Rhode Island.

It defines “bullying” as written, verbal or electronic expression or a physical act or gesture or any combination thereof directed at a student by one or more students that:

- causes or places the student in reasonable fear of physical or emotional harm or damage to the student’s property,
- creates an intimidating, threatening, hostile or abuse educational environment,
- infringes on the rights of the student to participate in school activities, or
- disrupts the educational process or orderly operation of the school.¹⁰²

The law identifies characteristics that may be reasonably perceived to have motivated the act of “bullying” as including race, color, religion, ancestry, national origin, gender, disability, sexual orientation and gender identity and expression.¹⁰³

The law goes on to define “cyber-bullying” as bullying through the use of technology or electronic communication.¹⁰⁴

¹⁰² R.I. Gen. Laws, § 16-21-33(a)(1).

¹⁰³ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 16-21-33(a)(1)(v).

¹⁰⁴ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 16-21-33(a)(2).

The law charges the Rhode Island Department of Elementary and Secondary Education (RIDE) to prescribe a statewide bullying policy that must be adopted by all the schools by June 30, 2012. The policy must include:

- procedures for students, staff, parents and others to report bullying,
- procedures for promptly responding to and investigating reports of bullying or retaliation,
- the range of disciplinary actions that may be taken,
- a parental engagement strategy,
- procedures for restoring a sense of safety for the student,
- strategies for protecting a person who reports bullying or assists in the investigation,
- procedures for promptly notifying the parents of both the perpetrator and victim,
- procedures for providing appropriate counseling for the victim, perpetrator and others affected by the bullying.¹⁰⁵

Are there other laws in Rhode Island that protect students from discrimination and harassment?

Yes. First, state law says that students, staff members and teachers all have the right to attend or work at a safe school, whether elementary, secondary or post-secondary.¹⁰⁶ These provisions empower schools to suspend or expel disruptive students.

The Rhode Island Department of Education's guidance and model policies on bullying, teen dating violence and sexual violence explicitly acknowledge the role that sexual orientation, sex, disability, appearance, and clothing may play in bullying, and make clear the applicability of provisions relating to dating and sexual violence to students regardless of sexual orientation.¹⁰⁷

¹⁰⁵ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 16-21-34.

¹⁰⁶ R.I. Gen. Laws, §§ 16-2-17, 16-81-1.

¹⁰⁷ See Guidance on Developing Required Policies Against Bullying, available at http://www.ride.ri.gov/psi/docs/child_family/substance/bullying%20guidance%20and%20modelpolicy%2011-21-

Are there other sources of protection for LGBT students in Rhode Island?

Yes. A Board of Regents Policy adopted in 1997 and revised in 2010 provides in part as follows:

. . .all students, without exception, have the right to attend a school in which they feel safe and able to express their identity without fear. . . .certain students, because of their actual or perceived sexual orientation or gender identity/expression, have been subject to discrimination through abuse, harassment, bullying and/or exclusion from full participation in educational activities.

Therefore, it is the Policy of the Board of Regents that no student shall be excluded from any educational program or activity or discriminated against, bullied, or harassed in any public educational setting based upon actual or perceived sexual orientation or gender identity/expression. . . This policy shall include but is not limited to admissions, guidance services, co-curricular and extra-curricular activities.

Each local school district is urged to review programs, services and activities to assure that such offerings are conducted in a manner that is free of inadvertent or intentional bias based upon sexual orientation and/or gender identity/expression. Each local school district is required by law to address harassment and bullying based on sexual orientation and/or gender identity/expression through the development and enforcement of appropriate student and staff behavior and disciplinary policies. . .

The Board of Regents policy can be found at:
<http://www.thriveri.org/RIDE%20Discrimination%20Policy%202010.pdf>.

What kinds of conduct does the policy cover?

Technically, the policy covers exclusion from a public school or discrimination in taking advantage of school programs. A school may not be so bold as to say, “Don’t come here,” or “You can’t take track,” but if they fail to redress pervasive harassment against you at school or in a particular class or activity, they may have said so in effect. It does not provide any mechanism for court or administrative enforcement of the policy.

Are there other laws which may protect me from discrimination and harassment because of my sexual orientation?

In some cases, other laws may help you to combat harassment. Under federal law, public schools which receive federal funds may not discriminate on the basis of sex. Sometimes, the harassment of a gay student will be sexual harassment forbidden by this federal law, known as Title IX. Complaints can be made to your school Title IX coordinator, as well as to the federal Department of Education, Office of Civil Rights, in Boston.

A student’s constitutional rights under both state and federal constitutions may be violated by some kinds of discrimination and harassment as well.

In addition, under state law, every post-secondary school is to establish a written policy concerning sexual harassment.¹⁰⁸ Also, post-secondary schools that have received internal complaints of harassment based on sexual orientation or gender identity and expression are required to disclose to the complainant in a timely manner how the complaint was addressed and what actions, if any, were taken to resolve the matter.¹⁰⁹ Neither of these laws provides a mechanism for court enforcement.

¹⁰⁸ R.I. Gen. Laws, §§ 16-76-1, 16-76-2.

As well, state law prohibits hazing, subjecting both the perpetrators of hazing and school officials who knowingly permit hazing to criminal liability. Hazing is defined as “any conduct or method of initiation into any student organization, whether on public or private property, which willfully or recklessly endangers the physical or mental health of any student or other person.”¹¹⁰

What can I do if I'm being discriminated against at school?

There are many ways to approach the issue. One is to ask for support from a friend, teacher or counselor and talk to the people who are bothering you. That is not an option, however, if you don't feel safe doing so.

Take a look at your school policies and notify whoever is supposed to be notified -- usually a vice principal or Title IX coordinator. You should document any incidents of harassment or discrimination in writing. Once you meet with the right officials, make a note of what you told them and on what date and ask when they will be getting back to you with a response. If they don't help you or don't follow through, you may wish to write to the principal and superintendent and ask for them to end the discrimination.

If all of these steps fail, you may also wish to consider legal action against the school district. Contact GLAD for attorney referrals.

● Other Rights of Public School Students

In addition to the right to attend school in safety and free from discrimination and harassment based on your sexual orientation or gender identity or expression:

¹⁰⁹ R.I. Gen. Laws, § 16-76.1-1.

¹¹⁰ R.I. Gen. Laws, §§ 11-21-1, 11-21-2.

- LGBTQ youth must have equal access to and be allowed to participate on equal terms in all school programs, including extracurricular activities.
- Schools must respect the gender identity of transgender students, including using appropriate names and pronouns, and allowing transgender students to wear clothing consistent with their gender identity.
- LGBTQ youth have the right to be open about their sexual orientation and gender identity and expression.
- Students have the right to form extracurricular groups, such as Gay-Straight Alliances, on the same terms and with the same privileges and resources as all other extracurricular groups.
- LGBTQ students have the right to express themselves on issues relating to sexual orientation or gender identity and expression.
- Students have the right to learn about LGBT issues and have access to information and resources, including educational websites, about LGBT issues and people, regardless of objecting school officials or parents.

For additional information, see GLAD's publication, Rights of LGBTQ Youth in Rhode Island at:

<http://glad.org/uploads/docs/publications/rights-of-lgbtq-youth-in-ri.pdf>.

GLAD has a brochure called, Want to Know Your Right As an LGBTQ Student?, that can be found at:

<http://www.glad.org/uploads/docs/publications/lgbtq-student-rights-ri.pdf>. We would be glad to mail you a printed version of this brochure. Just contact GLAD Answers by email or live chat at www.GLADAnswers.org or by phone at 800-455-GLAD (4523).

- Gay/Straight Alliances

Do students have the right to form Gay/Straight Alliances in their schools even if the principal or community opposes it?

Students have several legal tools available if they wish to form a Gay/Straight Alliance or club in their public school. A federal law known as the “Equal Access Act” provides that secondary school students in schools that receive federal funding and have extra-curricular groups must allow students to form other extra-curricular groups without discriminating based on the religious, philosophical, political or other content of the speech at meetings. According to both this law and general First Amendment principles, school administrators must respond consistently to all requests for the formation and funding of extracurricular clubs, even if they do not agree personally with the content or have concerns about the community’s reaction to its formation. A school cannot, on those bases, condition a club’s formation on the students’ willingness to change the club’s name, restrict the club’s access to school facilities that all clubs may access (i.e., meeting space, bulletin board or website space, yearbook entries, ability to announce activities), or establish different requirements for funding or staffing. GLAD successfully intervened on behalf of students seeking to form a GSA at South Kingston High School on this very basis.

- Resources

PROTECT YOUR RIGHTS

GLAD Answers

Call: (800) 455-GLAD (4523)

Email or Live Chat:

www.GLADAnswers.org

Rhode Island Commission for Human Rights

(401) 222-2661

www.richr.ri.gov

Rhode Island Department of Education

(401) 222-4600

US Department of Education Office for Civil Rights

(617) 289-0111

OCR.Boston@ed.gov

American Civil Liberties Union – RI

(401) 831-7171

www.riaclu.org

KNOW MORE ABOUT YOUR RIGHTS

The text of the Rhode Island anti-bullying law: <http://bit.ly/ribullylaw>

GLAD's Rhode Island students' rights webpage:

<http://bit.ly/ristudentsrights>

GLAD's webpage on student rights: <http://bit.ly/gladstudentrights>

LOCAL LGBTQ YOUTH GROUPS

Youth Pride Inc.

(401) 421-5626

info@youthprideri.org

www.youthprideri.org

PFLAG

Greater Providence

(401) 751-7571

pflagprovidence@verizon.net

www.pflagprovidence.org/index.htm

OTHER RESOURCES YOU CAN USE

GLBT Help Line of Rhode Island

(401) 751-3322

www.glbthelpline.org

AIDS Project Rhode Island

(401) 831-5522

www.aidsprojectri.org

East Bay Community Action Program

(401) 847-7821

www.ebcap.org

Rhode Island Coalition Against Domestic Violence

(401) 467-9940

1-800-494-8100 (24 hr)

The Trevor Project

Crisis/Support Line: (866) 488-7386

www.thetrevorproject.org

Through strategic litigation, public policy advocacy, and education, GLBTQ Legal Advocates & Defenders works in New England and nationally to create a just society free of discrimination based on gender identity, HIV status, and sexual orientation.

GLAD Answers and publications are provided free of charge to all who need them. We hope that those who are able will make a contribution to ensure that GLAD can continue the fight for equal justice under the law.

To make a tax-deductible contribution, log on to www.glad.org, or call us at (800) 455-GLAD (4523) with your credit card, or mail your check, payable to GLAD to 30 Winter Street, Suite 800, Boston, MA 02108. If your workplace has a matching gift program, please be sure to have your donation matched. Please contact us if you would like more information on becoming a GLAD partner.

Thank You!

GLBTQ Legal Advocates & Defenders
30 Winter Street, Suite 800
Boston, MA 02108
Tel 617.426.1350
1.800.455.GLAD (4523)
Fax 617.426.3594

www.GLAD.org | www.GLADAnswers.org